

ABSTRACT

The invention relates to a process for the catalytic decomposition of N_2O to N_2 and O_2 .

This process is carried out at a high temperature, generally of between 700 and 1 000°C, at a high HSV and in the presence of a catalyst composed of a mixed oxide of zirconium and of cerium existing in the form of a solid solution.